Echoes from the Past

Gleaned from an Old Advertiser
Published in 1859

A copy of the Norway Advertiser, published Dec. 8, 1859, might be called a "War Number" because of allusions to the impending rebellion of states.

The copy of our inspection carries the motto, "Independence in Everything, Neutral in Nothing," which is suggestive of a combative attitude in politics and community affairs.

One item about the execution of John Brown that took place Friday before publication was not complimentary to a victim. Apparently the story was a personal paragraph by the editor, who characterized John Brown as a victim of misleading teachings of Northern Abolition leaders and stubbornly wed to a narrow idea in religion and other matters.

A reprint from the Scientific American of Oct. 23, 1859 is a comparative cost of give the following prices per gallon: Kerosene, $1.00; lamp oil, 65c; whale oil, $1.00; lamp oil, $1.25; sperm oil, $1.75; and burning fluid, 70c.

Local news are missing and must be gleaned from advertisements. Chas. C. Cole, in Norway Block, would change fluid lamps to kerosene, repair valves and fit spectacles. Dr. W. R. Evans, surgeon, located, opposite the Universalist Church, Crockett's Studio made ambrotypes and wanted not to trade or credit as many do.

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Arthur Kelleher is having a weeks vacation from his work in this office and with his wife, is visiting relatives in New York.

Lindsay O. Morse brought a wild straw-ber plant to the office Oct. 31. The specimen was gathered on Pike Hill and carried two full blown blossoms.

Auto plate 02-342 Maine with rear light attached, was found by George Linnell, Oxford, Route 1, and left at this office, Monday.

Sergt. Hobart Smith and Corp. John M. Stacey of Fort Williams called Thursday. They were in town in the interest of recruiting for the regular army.

L. E. McIntire, granger, democrat, and Gov. Brann commitment of Waterford, started for Boston last Monday to attend important hearings.

It costs us more than it would you to be notified of change of address by the postoffice. Please send new address on postal card promptly, when changes of address are to be made.

George Pike, who lives on the Stephen Pottle place, back of Pike Hill, so-called, brought in a huge table he had raised this season. It weighs 7-14 lbs., and stood close to a foot in height.

"Forever to lose a license" is a long, long thing, and justice to the party who shoots a man and a hunter will pay the hunter who likes to hunt, to be mighty careful what he shoots at in the Maine woods.

Several beautifully uniformed, nice looking young men were busily engaged in town, Thursday. They were not game wardens. Let us hope they were pall bearers of depression and let it go at that.

Mr. and Mrs. Colby Robinson of Portland were callers, Friday afternoon, being on the way to South Albany for the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kimball. Colby appeared jubilant over the prospects of a hunting trip to Lake Umbagog this week. He expected to catch out one deer and a carload of bears.

Mr. Woodbury M. Russell was in, Thursday morning, to place an ad in the Intelligencer Column on the camp at Sunday River, during the hunting season. While they were there at the last Sunday they saw a deer pass close by and the previous week nine deer were being to the Noble boys of Norway.

Mrs. Agnes M. Pike, who owns and lives on the Eben Pottle farm in Norway found a number of antlers in the area recently. In the collection is a round corn popper at least a century old; stumple for a hand loom, and a handmade milk skimmer. The buildings were put up nearly a hundred years ago by Eben Pottle, who cleared a large tract of land, the farm is the well known Pottle tomb of granite slabs, built into a mound.

D. Cromet Clark writes: "So you Norway folks have made the acquaintance of wild rice. I have never seen it growing, but have had the pleasure of eating it cooked several times. Perhaps this some Norwegian."

Wild Rice With Mushrooms
1 cup wild rice
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup boiling water
1 dozen large mushrooms, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup cream
Pepper to taste
Add salt to boiling water and pour rice in slowly and cook for twenty minutes, stirring occasionally. Simmer mushrooms in butter five minutes. Drain rice, add mushrooms, cream and pepper. Steam for five minutes. Add salt and water for sufficient time to thoroughly heat it before serving.

Sent in: "Some otherwise well informed Norway citizens apparently have not yet heard that the town has a code of traffic regulations. If not that, perhaps they do not believe in signs. Of course everyone makes an error now and then, but when the motorists make a practice of parking for several hours daily in front of a no parking sign, it can only be concluded that they are showing a selfish disregard of the convenience and safety of their fellow motorists. Local traffic regulations are not unenforceable. The authorities have not been harsh in the matter of violations, and have given everyone ample opportunity to show their willingness to cooperate for the benefit of the community. Almost any of them can read the wording on a no parking sign, which seems to be beyond the ability of some high school and college graduates."

Afflictions multiply! When the washing came in it was minus an alarm clock bureau dolly. A little affair about as big as your two hands. Just a piece of cloth.

West end of Main and some of Pleasant Street was ransacked. Mrs. Elwin Russell and Roy Spiller disturbed and Ned Packard implicated. "It certainly was a bad day on the line to dry the wind must have blown it into his yard or somewhere else."

Restitution, substitution and even money were offered by the good washwoman but the thing is lost—gone!

The mail that same morning bringing the Laconia (N. H.) Evening Citizen, has startling news as follows:

Sanborn House in Meredith Center Burns
"A small farmhouse in Meredith Center, owned by Fred Sanborn, publisher of the Norway, Me. Advertiser, was completely destroyed by fire this morning. Chief Chester Bickford, who does duty as head of the town police and fire department, and his fire ladders answered the alarm. He said that the fire appeared to be of incendiary origin."

"Publisher Sanborn occasionally goes to the farm during the summer. It formerly belonged to his father and is called the Smith place by the residents of the district."

Later news:
"The alarm was telephoned in by Claude M. Calvert, who reports that a strange man dropped into town the night previous and purchased a half dozen eggs of Mrs. Otis Davenport. Tuesday morning smoke was seen coming from the chimney of the empty house and shortly after the fire broke out. It is suspected the man went to the farm during the summer. He went to the farm during the summer. He went to the farm during the summer."

The nation needs jobs. It needs taxes and higher living standards. The utilities as a whole are and have been doing their part to provide them, and they have never wavered in their purpose of giving the American people the best and cheapest power in the world. Those who would "machine gun" them, all because of a few, should do a little of the thinking before they go farther.

AOWAKIYA CAMPFIRE

The Aowakiya Campfire Girls met at their room, October 26, in the afternoon, and made ready for the banquet which they gave in the evening in honor of the mothers. It was the first time since the beginning of the group, which was about six and one-half years ago, that all of the mothers have attended.

Toasts were given and songs were sung by the girls. All of this was done very nicely. After the banquet, the mothers and daughters gathered together and enjoyed the remaining part of the evening by playing games.

October 31, Mrs. Nelson and four of the Aowakiya girls, who were Marion Frothingham, Barbara Carroll, Helen Merrill and Glenna Turner, attended a meeting at Rumford. They gave talks and demonstrations of Campfire work, to help start a group of Campfire Girls at that place. It is hoped by all that this will be a success.

BOY SCOUT RALLY

A. Kenneth McCartney of the Lewiston district Boy Scouts of America conducted competitive tests on the high school grounds, Thursday. Rev. Rensel H. Colby and Scoutmaster Elmore Edmunds assisted, together with the assistant scout masters, Hugh Morton and Milford Chandler. About fifty scouts from the surrounding towns took part in the tests, representing troops at Mechanic Falls and Norway beside the local group, including the Hebron members.

Patrols were formed and dinner was cooked over open fires in Indian fashion, then for the contests.

In the signaling contest, Norway were winners and Norway and Paris tied for first place in the contest of judging distance of competitive tests on the high school grounds, Thursday. Rev. Rensel H. ### ORGANIZED THE CUBS

The Paris Cubs, for boys between the ages of 9 and 13, has been organized to function in conjunction with the Boy Scouts. Members will automatically pass into the Scouts, provided they win certain honors. Oayma Colby has been selected leader.

A committee was organized to proceed with the work and supervise the activities, comprising the following: Judge Harry M. Snow, chairman; William A. Olford, secretary and treasurer; Harry A. Packard, publicity; Roland French and F. A. Dodge.

Dens will be made in back yards of boys who commonly team together, their work and play will be under the direction of a Boy Scout.

Hallowe'en celebrations, on Tuesday evening, decorated the high school building with a miscellaneous collection of articles including ladders, boards, parts of wagons and carpenter's horses. The basketball floor was hauled onto the football field, posts taken up and parts of the iron fence pushed over. Some residences were visited and objects left at the doors, while the rattle of tick-tacks started many.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Deane of Yarmouth were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Walter Starbird.

Mrs. Glenna Starbird Woodbury attended the teachers' convention, also the Nason reunion and tea held at the Lewiston Y. W. C. A.

Read by Mrs. Adeline Mann, accompanied by Mrs. Winnie Kidon and Rhylis Welch.

While about a dozen different characters parading across the stage tried to attract the attention of the bachelor, who by the way, was Maynard Chase, asleep in his chair, occasionally a suggestive song was sung by Mrs. Redman.

It was very neatly done. The last number on the program was Virginia Red danced on the stage by a dozen or more women, half of them dressed as men in various costumes of the last century. The other half dressed old fashioned, accompanied by Mrs. Ethel Penley on the piano. A very funny number and brought the house down in laughter. Mrs. Forbes and Mrs. Beckler were the announcers, that they intended to give a minstrel show, but just couldn't now, but intended to give it later when they could have more time to work it up.
